Sandra joined BDC in 2006 and has held various business development positions in the Canadian SME ecosystem before taking on her current role. She was raised in a family of entrepreneurs and has pursued studies and worked in the United States, Africa and Mexico.

In her current role, she is responsible for strengthening BDC’s international relations while building a sustainable international framework to benefit Canadian SMEs. It implies, among other things, identifying, negotiating and managing corporate partnerships with external and internal stakeholders, with a focus on addressing the needs of Canadian SMEs in their reach for global expansion.

Apart from her role at the BDC, Sandra acts as Secretary General for The Montreal Group.

She holds a Bachelor’s degree in Communications (Concordia + Equatorial Guinea + University of Ottawa combined program), a Graduate diploma in International Business (McGill University) and an MBA (University of Ottawa).
